

NYS AFCSE
Excellence in Family and Consumer Sciences Award

In 1987 the NYS AFCSE Executive Board created the Excellence in Family and Consumer Sciences Award to honor outstanding Family and Consumer Sciences students and promote Family and Consumer Sciences Education. The award should be the highest award given in the area of Family & Consumer Sciences within a school therefore each member of NYS AFCSE may only award one certificate. If a member teaches at both the Middle school level and High school level, then one award per level may be given by a member.

Presentation

An official certificate is presented to the student by a member of NYS AFCSE in the appropriate local setting. Certificates are available from the Awards Chairperson, via the Area Coordinator.

Criteria for the Award

The recipient must:

- *have taken or is presently enrolled in a Family and Consumer Science course.
- *be a student of a NYS AFCSE member
- *have high achievement in the study of Family and Consumer Sciences.
- *have an understanding of the importance of self-development as it relates to preparation for family membership, community participation and employment.
- *meet other criteria established locally.
- *FCCLA membership and participation should be considered.

Selection Procedure

1. A local NYS AFCSE member or a Family and Consumer Sciences Department made up of NYS AFCSE members selects recipient(s).
2. Certificates are secured from the Area Coordinator and presented to the student.
3. NYS AFCSE members send the name and address of the student recipient(s) to the Recording Secretary immediately after the presentation of the award (no later than June 30). A letter of congratulations from the State President will be sent to the student.
4. Teachers who teach both Middle School and High School may award one certificate at each level. All others may only award one certificate.

*It is recommended that you publicize the award
